Photo Courtesy: Pixabay/PublicDomainPictures Gold is a great investment because it maintains its value in the long term. It’s an excellent hedge against inflation because its price usually rises when the cost of living increases. The price also rises when the dollar declines. Gold should be part of every investment portfolio. Read on to learn about the best ways to buy gold. Gold BullionGold bullion, available in gold bars and gold bullion coins, includes items that are bought strictly for investment. Gold bullion coins and bars are minted by many national mints in major countries around the world. One-, 10- and 100-ounce bars are popular. You can also buy gold collectible coins, which can range from 19th century circulated coins to Disney collectibles that are produced today. Collectible coins are priced higher than the identical size gold bullion coins.Gold ETFsA gold ETF, or exchange-traded fund, is a commodity ETF that focuses on one commodity: gold. More than 32 gold ETFs, managed by gold experts, are traded in United States financial markets. With an ETF, you can own small amounts of numerous different investments within a single fund. Therefore, you get diversification even if you don’t invest a lot of money. You can buy a single share of an ETF for less than $100.Gold ETNSA gold exchange-traded note (ETN) is a product designed to track the price of gold. The value of a gold ETN is dependent on the movements of a stock index or other benchmark. ETNs were created by Barclays investment bank in 2006, and they have become an alternative to ETFs. Contrary to ETFs, ETNs don’t actually own anything. They are debt notes that include a promise to pay an amount on the maturity day.Gold Mining StocksYou can invest in shares of gold mining companies. More than 300 gold mining companies are listed and publicly traded. With gold mining stocks, you’re making a bet on gold prices. As the value of gold becomes higher than a miner’s cost of production, profitability moves up dramatically. The growth and return in a gold mining stock depends on the expected future earnings of the company as well as on the value of gold.Buy OnlineIf you’re buying gold for the first time, it’s a good idea to invest in gold bullion coins. They are highly liquid, secure, convenient and budget-friendly. There are several reputable online companies that buy and sell gold as well as silver and other precious metals. APMEX, the world’s largest online retailer of precious metals, offers a wide variety of products. You can also buy gold from multiple sites online. Place the chopped bittersweet chocolate in a medium bowl, and set aside. Pour the heavy cream into a small saucepan over medium heat, and bring it to a simmer. Once the cream is near boiling, pour the hot cream over the chopped chocolate and let it sit for one minute to soften the chocolate. Gently whisk the cream and chocolate together until they’re a smooth, homogenous mixture. Add the vanilla extract and stir to blend. Press a piece of cling wrap to the top of the ganache and let it sit at room temperature to cool. It is ready to use when it is no longer warm at all, but still fairly fluid. While you wait for the ganache to cool, prepare the molds. If you have only one mold, you will have to repeat this process multiple times until all of your candies are formed. If you have multiple molds, you can do this all in one batch. Melt the candy coating, or take the tempered chocolate, and spoon some into each cavity in the mold, so that the cavities are entirely filled. Wait about a minute, then flip the mold upside down over a piece of waxed paper or parchment paper. The excess chocolate will drip down onto the paper. Swirl it slightly to encourage the chocolate to drip down. The chocolate on the paper can later be scraped off and re-melted to be used again. Take a chef’s knife, an offset spatula, or a bench scraper, and run it across the top of the mold, removing any excess chocolate from the top. This will make your finished truffles neater. Let the chocolate mold harden at room temperature, or if your ganache is ready to use immediately, place the mold in the refrigerator to quickly set it for about 10 minutes. Once set, spoon or pipe the ganache into your molds, filling each cavity 3/4 full. Tap the molds on the counter to release any air bubbles. Refrigerate the molds to firm up the ganache, for about 30 to 45 minutes. It needs to be firm enough so that when you put warm melted chocolate on top of it, it will hold its shape and not melt into the chocolate. Once the ganache is chilled and firm, re-melt the coating or re-temper the chocolate and spoon some melted chocolate on top of each cavity, spreading it to the edges so the ganache is completely sealed in. Scrape off the excess again with your knife or bench scraper. Allow the chocolates to completely set at room temperature or in the refrigerator, then turn the mold upside-down and gently tap them out of the mold. If necessary, take a sharp paring knife to trim off any jagged edges or excess chocolate. At this point, your molded chocolates are finished, but if you want to paint them gold, continue on to the next step. Take a small, clean paintbrush that has only been used for food, and dip it in the gold luster dust. Brush the dust over the entire surface of the chocolate, until it is shiny and covered in gold. From this point on, be very careful when you handle these truffles since the gold dust will wipe off if you touch it. Use a small spatula or knife to lift them if you need to move them, and don’t stack them on top of each other or the gold coating will show marks and scuffs. Heart of gold truffles can be stored in an airtight container in the refrigerator for up to a week. For best taste and texture, bring them to room temperature before serving. Rate This Recipe I don't like this at all. It's not the worst. Sure, this will do. I'm a fan—would recommend. Amazing! I love it! Thanks for your rating! You may be willing to part with your unwanted or old gold jewelry to add some cash to your wallet. It helps to know how much gold may be worth and where to sell it for the best price.Can I Sell Broken Gold?Gold is gold even if its in pieces, tangled or broken, according to MoneyCrashers.com, a financial advice site. Gold scrap is resold to businesses that melt down the gold. So no matter what shape your gold is in, it retains its value, states the site.Seller beware, however. Your scrap may be worth thousands. There’s a story of a man who thought his scrap gold was worth little until it was determined it came from a commemorative collection worth $20,000, according to ABCNews.go.com.Gold Calculators OnlineLearning the approximate prices of gold and what yours may be worth is easier to find out today than ever thanks to online gold calculators. Instantly calculate your gold scrap value by first weighing it on a common kitchen scale (a digital scale is more accurate, per GoldCalc.com) and pop the numbers into the online calculator. Here are top sites: GoldCalc.com CashForGoldCalculator.com Coinapps.com The calculators also have real-time scrap gold prices per gram, but you can also choose milligrams, some per troy ounce or DWT, all explained in the next section.Types of Gold WeightsThough most companies buy gold priced per gram, you’ll come across the terms troy ounces and DWTs as units of measurement. Here’s what it means, but for simplicity, stick to weighing your gold in grams. Troy ounce: This is used to weigh silver or gold Bullion, according to CoinValues.com. A troy ounce is 2.75 grams more than a regular ounce, says the site. DWT: DWT, also called pennyweight, is another measurement used for gold jewelry. You’ll likely see this if you sell gold to a jewelry store. There are 20 pennyweights in one troy ounce, according to UsedJewelryBuyer.com. The Realities of Gold PricesBefore selling gold, be realistic about the amount of money you’ll receive, according to the Jewelers of America (jewelers.org). Even if you see that gold is selling high one day, you’ll be paid only for the amount of gold that’s in your jewelry. Even 18-karat gold is made of gold and other alloys, warns the site. A 14-karat gold jewelry price per gram will be even less than you thought.Gold Selling TipsThe Jewelers of America offers other tips for selling your gold so you can feel confident you got the best price possible: Don’t sell any gold jewelry that you have emotional ties to or else you’ll regret it.Use a magnifier to find the gold stamps on your jewelry so you know what karat you have.Find a trusted buyer. A reputable buyer has a license to buy gold in your state, they are likely a member of a jewelry trade association and has a good Better Business Bureau rating.Go to a few places to shop your gold scrap so you can get the best price.Do business with a local company. Avoid the transient gold buyers that set up shop in a hotel for a weekend, or else you’re likely be underpaid for your gold, according to ABCNews.go.com. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET
